ABSTRACT

Doing a manual process in monitoring sales is time consuming and could lead to unanticipated human errors or mistakes, hence, leading the data efficiency into risk. Manually tallying inventory could also be a great factor of data bias and data lost. Manual order entry needs a costly headcount and is error-prone, hence leads conflicts with customers. This study has a proposed system that would help the Dripte Manager in managing the orders, sales and inventories. The system will be able to track sales and manage inventories of orders, sales and milktea cups. The system will allow customers to place their orders online over the internet. Accordingly, this entire system process intends to indulge the needs of Dripte to have a reliable and secured automated system which is based on Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale. The system has used the following technologies: Vue JS, PHP Laravel, and etc. and the Modified Waterfall Model as the Developmental Model of the system. This study used Blackbox testing for verification and User Acceptance Testing for the Validation. Based on the findings, it shows that the system is successful and it meets the specification the proponents' client required. The users of the system find the system relevant and useful for the field of study. Th research is beneficial for Dripte Manager, Dripte Cashier, Online User and this study as a whole could be useful for businesses.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

This chapter discusses the research problem and presents situations that lead to the conceptualization of the study about Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale.

1.1 Rationale of the Study

Nowadays, computer technology continues to evolve, grow faster and faster. And companies have started to adapt to more modernized technologies and facilities to keep up with the rapid advancement of technology. It greatly helps these companies to have faster, easier, and more accurate transactions and to have more reliable and secure information (Gleeson, 2019).

Then every business in our society started shifting from using the manual system to an automated one that makes work easier and faster. According to Ravi (2010), manual sales systems are time consuming, it is very tedious, lots of paperwork, slow data processing, it is not a user-friendly environment and it is difficult to find records due manual file management systems. Furthermore, it is nice to make a Point of Sale (POS) system to have an easy way of checking and listing of the sales of the company, it is faster and more reliable rather than doing it manually. As defined by Carolina Barcode Inc. (2013), a Point-of-Sale system is a computer software and hardware networked together to track sales and inventory as they occur. Point-of-Sale systems will solve a multitude of problems in your business. It is one of the focal points of any business.

Today, many business owners have come to realize the disadvantages of manual process of ordering products, checking and listing of sales and inventories of the company. Realizing that we are in a technology driven world, the emergence of technology can be a powerful tool to attain more effective, more productive and more profitable business. According to Linder (2016), you can help streamline your operations with a POS system. This implies improved productivity and a decrease in human error. Recently, Driptea is facing difficulties in ordering products, checking and listing their sales and managing inventories.

Also, they find it hard to track records of their sales and orders as well as customer services since they do not have online ordering. They are also logging all the records in an excel manually. Thus, doing transactions manually can be prone to data loss and sales loss, human error and eventually resulted in inconsistency of data. In this way, checking and tracking sales and inventory are also hard. These problems may cause great loss of profit especially in the business and can lead the data efficiency into risk. According to Internet World Stats, as of 2006, there were more than 1 billion people online worldwide. It is no wonder that the internet is the place to go to build a network marketing business (Nichols,2007).

Selling online can be a more effective way in gaining more profit especially in the network marketing business. Electronic commerce or e-commerce is a term for any type of business, or commercial transaction that involves the transfer of information across the internet (web.com, 2014). It is a nice method for a business to gain more revenue. According to eMarketer, an e commerce sale rose 16.4% in 2013 over the previous year to 262.3 billion dollars and is estimated to climb to 440 billion dollars by 2017 (Harley, 2016). Mostly clearly, selling online increases business market reach and creates opportunities to increase overall sales revenues.

Hence, we developed a present system that is an Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale which will help to overcome their short falls in ordering, listing, checking and tracking all their sales and managing inventories.

1.2 Statement of the Problem

1.2.1 General Objective

The study aims to develop an Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale for Driptea in order to automate the manual processes in ordering milk tea products, doing inventory for cups, orders and sales, monitoring sales daily, monthly, quarterly, annually and semi-annually, and monitoring the status of customer's order.

1.2.2 Specific Objectives

This study was able to attain the following:

1. Identified the current process in ordering milk tea products and tracking of sales and inventory of Driptea.
2. Developed the inventory management and ordering system with point of sale
3. Tested and evaluated the web-based application.
4. Deployed the web-based application for Driptea Online.

1.3 Significance of the Study

This study aims to improve Driptea's manual ordering, sales and inventory management processes. Thus, this study will benefit the following:

Administrator. It will be convenient for the Admin to manage sales, inventory of cup stocks, orders and sales of their products. It will be easier for him to calculate and process the data in the whole sale process with accuracy of the data being calculated. Admin will be able to track cashier's activity through logging the system.

Cashiers. It is much easier and convenient for them to receive and checkout orders from customers.

Researchers. It can help the researchers in sharpening their knowledge and exercising their skills to prepare them for the real battle in the IT Industry.

Future Researchers. This study will serve as a future reference for future studies of Point of Sale Inventory Management and Ordering System.

1.4 Scope and Limitations

In this study, the area of interest is on the web-based Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale that can be accessed online. The system will be able to track sales daily, monthly, quarterly, semi-annual and annually, and manage inventories of cups, orders and sales. It can also update, add, view, edit and delete any milk tea products. This system can automate the manual ordering of milk tea products. With this the process would be faster, easier and more accurate data processing and calculation of data on sale. This study also aims to improve the accuracy of data being processed.

With the above mentioned, here are the following limitations of our system:

- the system is only accessible online
- this study is aimed for Driptea employees
- the system caters milk tea products only
- the system only caters cash on delivery(COD) as a mode of payment

CHAPTER 2

RELATED SYSTEMS

This chapter examines and discusses the literature and systems in a given area of study about Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale.

The Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale plays an important role in the business world. Point of Sale (POS) data can be used to create expected sales forecasts based upon previous demand. This will impact purchase orders, which will help in determining what the end users would like to purchase based on the data gathered forecast by the POS (Simon, 2008). An Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale automates the processes of ordering, listing, checking and tracking sales and cup inventory.

Ordering System

Ordering is a process of the customers specifying what they want, so that the order can be recorded by using a note, form, computer system and many others, followed by passing it to the relevant department for processing and finally delivery of the services or products to the customers based on the order. (Reddy et al., J Inform Tech Soft Eng 2016)

User Access Level and Data Security

Research about user access level has also been done. In fact, they design a collaborative system called CATS. CATS was designed as a collaborative system, meaning most of the data can be seen and shared within a company (CATS,2006). In this system, employees are granted with different permissions of access levels to ensure data security.

Inventory System

A project has been done in Auburn University Department of Foreign Languages and Literature Multimedia Center. The produced system is called the Foreign Languages and Literature Multimedia Center Inventory System. This system is a database-driven web site that has been written in ColdFusion backed by a MySQL database. All data stored in the website were present in the database (Ginn, 2010).

Online Sales Monitoring and Inventory System

Research about online sales monitoring and inventory systems has also been done. This system is about the company's sales monitoring and inventory system. The manual method is a very difficult and time-consuming inventory process. It has many drawbacks because there are many errors while recording large data and sometimes it disturbs some significant transactions (konek, 2016).

Epos Now

Epos Now is a retail management system that offers integrated Inventory Management, Customer Management, and Retail Accounting, including general ledger, purchase orders, and payroll processing. Epos now is cloud-based, and compatible on Windows, Mac, Android, and iPad.

Toast POS

Toast POS is a system built exclusively for the food service industry. Toast Offers online ordering and inventory management. Their POS system can help streamline inventory management and restaurant operations. Necessary menu updates, such as daily specials, can be made from any Toast terminal or mobile device using the Toast app.

Revel System Software

Revel is a cloud-based business platform that integrates operations and customer channels with point-of-sale (POS) functionality in a single dashboard. It is suitable for stores and restaurants of all sizes and provides users with a POS system with integrated inventory management, customer management and social media management functionalities.

HungerRush Software

HungerRush Software manages online orders, accepts payments via credit cards and gains visibility into sales orders on a centralized dashboard. It lets customers place orders as guests using an online portal or via Facebook accounts and add multiple delivery addresses for quick selection in the future. They also help businesses maintain a customer database including order histories, addresses, contact details and more.

eHopper is a system for a POS solution that was created with the intention of helping small businesses. It has contact management, some inventory management, handling tips and split payments, and employee management. eHopper runs on Windows, Android tablets, and iPads, giving stores a nice range of options.

The table below shows the different related systems being reviewed in this study. These are the related systems being compared to the proposed system of the researchers about Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale (see table 1).

TECHNICAL BACKGROUND

This chapter provides the overview of the tools used by the developers in developing the Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale.

Back-end Programming Language

Laravel is an open source PHP web framework with expressive, elegant syntax. This eases the common tasks used in the majority of web projects, such as real-time event broadcasting, multiple back-ends for session and cache storage, and fast routing engine. This is also accessible, yet powerful, providing tools needed for large, robust applications. (Riesjart, 2020)

Front-end Programming Language

Vue.JS which is an advanced JavaScript framework that was built for designing User Interface and single-page applications. Developed by Evan You, the VueJS is an open-source JavaScript framework that has an adaptable architecture. It focuses on declarative rendering and component composition. The core library is focused on the view layer only. Providing a bunch of features to build reusable web components, routing is one of those methods, it allows the user to switch between pages without refreshing which makes the navigation easy and really nice in your web application (SaidHayan, 2018).

Repository

The proponents will use GitHub as their repository. It is an open source distributed version control system. It is used for tracking changes in source code during software development. It is designed for coordinating work among programmers, but it can be used to track changes in any set of files. This tool is used to maintain the versions of the code and also for team collaboration (Nanoc, 2019).

Integrated Development environment (IDE)

An IDE, or Integrated Development Environment, enables programmers to consolidate the different aspects of writing a computer program. IDEs increase programmer's productivity by combining common activities of writing software into a single application: editing source code, building executable, and debugging. Thus, Visual Studio is used as an IDE of the proponents. Visual Studio is a feature-rich program that can be used for many aspects of software development. Over and above the standard editor and debugger that most IDEs provide, Visual Studio includes compilers, code completion tools, graphic designers, and many more features to ease the software development process. (Prosiankin, 2011)

Web Browser

A web browser is a software program that enables the user to explore, access, and show web pages. It is used for showing sites on the internet. Web programs contain HTML and CSS code that is used to show data inside a site pages and results may contrast contingent upon the internet browser being used. Google Chrome is the regular internet browser. This is used as a browser where we can have the option to execute UI source code (TechTerms, 2014).

Relational Database Management System

Using MySQL as their relational database management system used on the web. It is a database system that runs on the server. MySQL is ideal to use both in small and large applications. It is very fast, reliable and easy to use. PhpMyAdmin is a free software tool written in PHP, intended to handle the administration of MySQL over the Web (MySQL 8.0 Reference Manual, 2019). phpMyAdmin supports a wide range of operations on MySQL and MariaDB. Frequently used operations (managing databases, tables, columns, relations, indexes, users, permissions, etc.) can be performed via the user interface, while you still have the ability to directly execute any SQL statement.

This tool is used to store a multiple data and have easy access in getting important data (Rouse et al., 2018).

Design Framework

Vuetify is an open source for projects that is used for building user interfaces for web and mobile applications. This is known to have a reusable semantic component framework for Vue.js that aims to provide clean, semantic and reusable components. And vuetify supports all the modern browsers and is compatible with Vue CLI-3. (Pavillo, 2018)

Spreadsheet Program

MS Excel spreadsheet program for organizing data in Gantt Chart and doing the test cases. Microsoft Excel is a software program produced by Microsoft that allows users to organize, format and calculate data with formulas using a spreadsheet system (Microsoft Excel, 2016).

CHAPTER 4

DESIGN AND METHODOLOGY

This chapter discusses the processes, analysis and design used in the Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale.

4.1. Conceptual Framework

Figure 1 shows the current process of Driptea. When the customer wants to order milk tea, the cashier will get the details of the milk tea that the customer wants to order by writing it down on a small sheet of paper. The cashier is also responsible to accept orders coming from Facebook. The cashier will also note if the customer is coming from Grab, FoodPanda, Facebook or just a Walk-in customer. Walk-in customers are customers that come to the store. FoodPanda and Grab are also considered as walk-in customers. By doing this the manager will be able to identify what kind of customer has a lot of orders. After the cashier gets the details of the milk tea that the customer wants to order, the cashier will give the small sheet of paper to the person in-charge in making milk tea. After processing the ordered item, the person in-charge will give the small sheet of paper back to the cashier and the cashier will give the order to the customer.

The person in-charge in processing milk tea orders will also deduct the number of cups every order and report the remaining cups at the end of the day to the manager. After the ordering process, the cashier will compile the small sheet of paper and at the end of the day, the cashier will give the compiled small sheet of paper to the manager. The manager will record all the information written in a small sheet of paper in an excel sheet. Based on the record inputted, the manager will calculate the total amount of sales per day. The manager will also input the remaining cups in a day. And manually counting if the remaining cups match the milk tea cups sold in a day.

Figure 2 shows the entire process of the proposed system. The customer can order online and could choose whether online payment or cash on delivery. The cashier will be receiving the orders and the admin will also be notified. The order will be processed and will be out for delivery.

4.2. Analysis and Design

Figure 4 shows the overall database structure of the proposed system which contains tables such as products and order which are really important in the development of the main functionalities of the system.

4.3. Development Model

Figure 5 shows the Modified Waterfall development model in developing the application/system. The researchers used this model because it provides more flexible steps in which it contains overlapping phases and enables it to go back to the previous phases. The overlapping of phases also increases the process of efficiency since phases could be done at a time. The system allows return to a previous phase for verification and validation, ideally confined to connecting steps. After all these background operations, the system is ready in hand and then the final operations like installation and maintenance was done. At each phase, documents are created and filed, which explains the requirements for that specific phase. And at the end of each phase a review was conducted in order to decide whether to proceed to the next phase or not.

4.4. Development Approach

The researchers used a top-down approach in developing the application/system. The researchers used this approach because it is a straightforward planning phase and decision-making is centralized. Expectations are unified while roles and responsibilities are clear. In this approach, the proponents identify the possible modules of the system and then breakdown the broad modules in order to create specific modules which is called submodules.

4.7 Verification, Validation and Testing

Testing needs to be done because the developers are unable to build a bug-free system. This is necessary for the effective performance of the system. Testing is the process of finding any bugs and errors that were made during the entire development process. It is also used to validate and verify if the system has met the requirements and expectations of the client. This also lowers the risk of releasing defective and poor quality software. The following will be the types of testing that will be used to test the Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale for Driptea:

Black Box Testing is a testing strategy that focuses on the functionality rather than the internal workings of the system. It is generally used for functional verification of features for an application where test cases are written with the intended requirements and specifications of the application mind. Specific inputs for the test are designated, with the particular intended output. There will be 10 people that will be performing the Black Box Testing based on the requirements given by the capstone coordinator. User Acceptance Testing (Application Testing) is the last phase of the software testing process. The testing is done by the client or the actual users of the system and evaluate if the system accepted or based on requirements specifications. In User Acceptance Testing, there are 52 testers who test the Online Users, 52 was get based on the average customer per day in Driptea Store. There is only 1 tester for Admin User in user acceptance testing since Driptea has only one owner. And there is only 1 tester who test the user acceptance testing for Cashier User since Driptea has only 1 cashier. The total testers who test the User Acceptance Testing is 54.

RESULTS AND ANALYSIS

In this chapter, data gathered will be analyzed and interpreted. The researchers used Black Box Testing for Verification and User Acceptance Testing for Validation. The first part of testing is the black box testing consists of three phases. In each phase, testing for the system is executed. In the first phase, the researchers chose ten (10) testers to test the system. These ten testers will be the same testers to test the system for phase two going to the last phase. To understand why the researchers, have three phases for the testing, the researchers used the Modified Waterfall Model for their development model. The results of the three phases are then analyzed and interpreted. The second phase of the testing is the User Acceptance Testing. The UAT by the appropriate user of the specific account of the system. To elaborate further, the admin will do the UAT for the Admin Account, the Cashier will do the UAT for the Cashier Account and random users will do the UAT for the Online Customer Account.

Results of the test will also be interpreted and analyzed by the researchers.

Verification (Black Box Testing)

The Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale was tested from November 20, 2020 – December 2, 2020 by the following testers:

Admin Testers

- Merry Cris Ajoc
- Roselyn Amoc
- Rose Aira Daganasol
- Chilla Jean Cabungcag

Cashier Testers

- Jessa Mae Yosores
- Romeo Lenizo

Online User Testers

- Hannah Mae Pelino
- Judilyn But-Anon
- Malyn Gamboa
- Christopher Alonso

After executing a test, the decision is defined according to the following rules:

- Acceptable – The test sheet is set to "Acceptable" status if the actual result meets the expected result.
- Not Acceptable - The test sheet is set to "Not Acceptable" status if the actual result does not meet the expected result.

There are 337 test cases being tested by the Admin Testers.

There are 118 test cases being tested by the Cashier Testers.

There are 84 test cases being tested by the Online Customers Testers.

The graph above shows the overall summary of the test results for Phase 1 for Admin, Cashier and Online User. The result indicates that the passing percentage for Phase 1 Admin test case is 93.1% while the failing percentage for Admin Test Case is 6.9%. For Phase 1 Cashier test case passing percentage is 98.3% while the failing percentage for Cashier Test Case is 1.7%. For Phase 1 Online User test case passing percentage is 88.5% while the failing percentage for Online User Test Case is 11.5%. The graph above shows that during Phase 1 all User Testing, it already passed the acceptance status. The system did not receive the 100% because the validations for modals was not implemented and there were errors and bugs seen by the testers in clicking the link for forgot password. And when editing the personal information, the edited information cannot be reflected in the form after clicking save changes. Modal for receipt did not pop upon clicking the button checkout in POS.

The graph above shows the overall summary of the test results for Phase 2 Admin, Cashier and Online User. The result indicates that the passing percentage for Phase 2 Admin test case is 99.5% while the failing percentage for Admin Test Case is 0.5%. For Phase 2 Cashier test case passing percentage is 100.00%. For Phase 2 Online User test case passing percentage is 97.8% while the failing percentage for Online User Test Case is 2.2%. The graph above shows that during the Phase 2 Cashier User Testing, it already passed the acceptance status. The system did not receive the 100% because the modal receipt does not data after checkout the items in the POS and forgot password link is not implemented.

Validation (User Acceptance Testing)

The Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale was tested from December 3, 2020 – December 5, 2020 by the following users of the system:

(1) Admin – considered as the admin user, (2) Cashier and (3) Online User.

The system was tested based on functionality, reliability, usability, efficiency, maintainability, support and manuals.

Table Summary:

Criteria	Total Score

- 2.1 – 3.0 = Moderately Acceptable
- 1.0 – 2.0 = Not Acceptable

Average Score

The result seen in the graph differs based on the number of users and its responses to the questions for functionality, reliability, usability, efficiency, maintainability, support and manuals. These results vary on the preferences of the persons who tested the system.

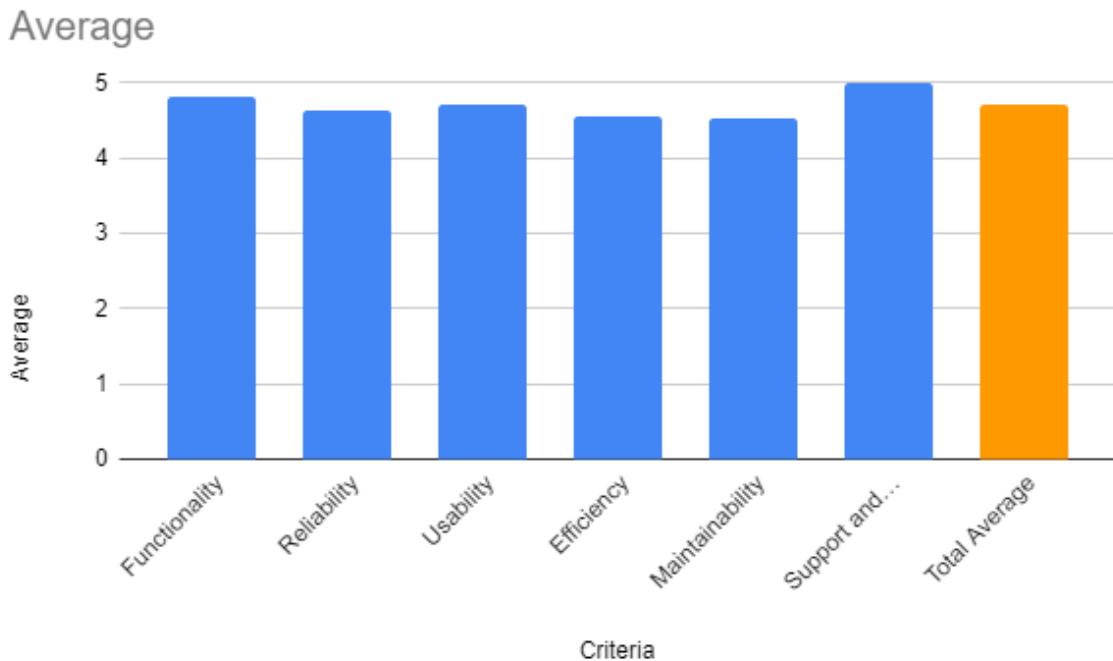

Figure 11: Summary of the result of all the criteria in all users in Users Acceptance Testing

The result for functionality, reliability, usability, efficiency, maintainability, support and manuals were gathered by summing up all average for functionality, reliability, usability, efficiency, maintainability, support and manuals from admin, cashier and online users. The result for total average is the summation of the all the averages in reliability, usability, efficiency, maintainability, support and manuals divided by the number of criteria which are the reliability, usability, efficiency, maintainability, support and manuals. For the User Acceptance testing conducted for all users, the proponents were able to get the average of 4.82 for the functionality due to the reason that some respondents were able to notice some minor bugs in the system. The link for the forgot password was redirected to the user's dashboard. For the reliability, the proponents were able to get the average of 4.62 in all users, because of the respondents have found issues with the information provided by the system, the information for the receipt was not displayed after clicking the checkout button for the admin and cashier user. For the usability, the proponents were able to get the average of 4.70 in all users due to some instances that some respondents were not satisfied with the design of the system. For the efficiency, the proponents were able to get the average of 4.56 in all users because some respondents found some issues on the user-friendliness of the system. The respondents have some issues regarding the system because it is slow in accomplishing specific actions like ordering a product for the Online User and checkout for the cashier and admin users. For the maintainability, the proponents were able to get the average of 4.54 for all users because some of the respondents found minor issues in testing and verifying sample data. Lastly, for the Support and Manuals, the proponents were able to get the average 5 for all the users since they found the users manual clear and concise in giving instruction and user manual provide actual screenshots showing on how to operate the system.

The Total Average is 4.71 which is “Very Acceptable”.

See Appendix G for Detailed User Acceptance Testing.

CHAPTER 6

CONCLUSION AND RECOMMENDATION

This chapter is a summary of the results and discussion of Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale.

Summarizing the Results

The findings in the research entitled Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale for Driptea is that using inventory management, online ordering with Point of Sale is more convenient than manual processes. Based on the result for the black box testing there is a higher percentage that the testers (admin, cashier and online users) finds the system “acceptable” than the percentage of “not acceptable”.

Putting the Results into Context

The result of the research helped the client to realize that automated inventory management and ordering systems with Point of Sale cannot only save time, it also helps in making the work faster and easier and increase productivity. For the User Acceptance Testing, the results were successful. For the Admin user, the average score was 4.79 which is equivalent to Very Acceptable, for the Cashier average score was 4.80 which is equivalent to very successful and for the Online User, 4.53 which equivalent to very acceptable. Thus, the result of the User Acceptance Testing proves that the system was seen and relevant for Admin, Cashier and Online User.

Evaluating the Process

The system also met the following requirements that the client wanted to have. The system has an efficient and reliable performance in doing inventory, sales management and online ordering.

Identifying Future Work

The result of this research can be very useful for some related research to validate the questions that were circling around the system. This research already answered that inventory management and ordering systems can give less hassle and can optimize time. The findings for this research can be used by those researchers who want to solve the related problems that the system already solved. This research also gave a big impact for business because they will have an idea on how to optimize time and human error would lessen.

Recommendations

As our system entitled “Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale for Driptea” has a lot to improve and to develop, the researchers have come up with the following recommendations to be implemented for the future systems related to this system.

- It would be much better if there is SMS Notifications would be available for all networks.
- It would be better if it includes online payment in the payment method.
- It would be better if there is map to track delivery
- It would be better if there is a chat bot connecting online users to admin and cashier

RATIONALE

Nowadays, computer technology continues to evolve, grow faster and faster. And companies have started to adapt to more modernized technologies and facilities to keep up with the rapid advancement of technology. It greatly helps these companies to have faster, easier, and more accurate transactions and to have more reliable and secure information (Gleeson, 2019).

Then every business in our society started shifting from using the manual system to an automated one that makes work easier and faster. According to Ravi (2010), manual sales systems are time consuming, it is very tedious, lots of paperwork, slow data processing, it is not a user-friendly environment and it is difficult to find records due manual file management systems. Furthermore, it is nice to make a Point of Sale (POS) system to have an easy way of checking and listing of the sales of the company, it is faster and more reliable rather than doing it manually. As defined by Carolina Barcode Inc. (2013), a Point-of-Sale system is a computer software and hardware networked together to track sales and inventory as they occur. Point-of-Sale systems will solve a multitude of problems in your business. It is one of the focal points of any business.

Today, many business owners have come to realize the disadvantages of manual process of ordering products, checking and listing of sales and inventories of the company. Realizing that we are in a technology driven world, the emergence of technology can be a powerful tool to attain more effective, more productive and more profitable business. According to Linder (2016), you can help streamline your operations with a POS system. This implies improved productivity and a decrease in human error. Recently, Driptea is facing difficulties in ordering products, checking and listing their sales and cup inventories.

Also, they find it hard to track records of their sales, cup stocks as well as customer services since they do not have online ordering. They are also logging all the records in an excel manually.

Thus, doing transactions manually can be prone to data loss and sales loss, human error and eventually resulted in inconsistency of data. In this way, checking and tracking sales and inventory are also hard. These problems may cause great loss of profit especially in the business and can lead the data efficiency into risk. According to Internet World Stats, as of 2006, there were more than 1 billion people online worldwide. It's no wonder that the internet is the place to go to build a network marketing business (Nichols,2007). Selling online can be a more effective way in gaining more profit especially in the network marketing business. Electronic commerce or e-commerce is a term for any type of business, or commercial transaction that involves the transfer of information across the internet (web.com, 2014). It is a nice method for a business to gain more revenue. According to eMarketer, an e commerce sale rose 16.4% in 2013 over the previous year to 262.3 billion dollars and is estimated to climb top 440 billion dollars by 2017 (Harley, 2016). Mostly clearly, selling online increases business market reach and creates opportunities to increase overall sales revenues.

Hence, we developed a present system that is an Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale which will help to overcome their short falls in ordering, listing, checking and tracking all their sales and inventories.

SYSTEM DESCRIPTION

Inventory Management and Ordering System with Point of Sale for Driptea is a system that automates the manual process in ordering milk tea products, doing inventory and monitoring of sales. A screenshot of the Drip Tea website's product catalog. The top navigation bar includes links for CLASSIC MILKTEA, FUSION SERIES, PREMIUM MILKTEA, and SIGNATURE MILKTEA. The main heading is "Products". Under "Classic Milktea", there are three items: "Thai Milktea" (a cup with orange liquid), "Okinawa" (a cup with orange liquid and a green straw), and "Black Wintermelon" (a cup with dark liquid). Under "Fusion Series", there are three items: "Aurora Passion" (a cup with a multi-colored, layered liquid), "Sunrise Lychee" (a cup with a multi-colored, layered liquid), and "Nother Yogurt" (a cup with a multi-colored, layered liquid and a small bowl next to it). Each product has a small image and its name below it.

The screenshot shows the "Orders in Cart" section. It lists a single item: "Aurora Passion" (Quantity: 1). The unit price is ₱80.00. The total amount is ₱155.00. Below the table, there are dropdown menus for "Mode of Payment" (set to "Cash on Delivery") and "Post Status" (set to "Cancel Order"). At the bottom, there is a green "Place Order" button.

The screenshot shows a "Pending Order" confirmation dialog. It displays the same information as the cart: "Aurora Passion" (Quantity: 1, ₱80.00). At the bottom, there is a blue "OK" button.

The screenshot shows a user interface for managing orders. At the top, there's a navigation bar with icons for home, cart, and user profile. Below it is a secondary header with tabs for 'COMPLETED ORDERS', 'PROCESSING ORDERS', 'PENDING ORDERS', and 'CANCELED ORDERS'. A sub-header displays the date '13/10/2020', order number '10', product name 'Aurora Passion', delivery fee '$0.00', total '$155.00', and a 'View' button.
